creativecurio @lirmac woohoo! I'm a letterpress hobbiest too! yay! #dcth -6:29 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 nologydesign I don't think jQuery will kill flash. It takes flash out of the simple animation game but flash/cgi is a beast in and of itself. #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 g33kguy @sunwukung Oh you're not kidding. Yesterday was horrible fighting the code, but I won in the end. Today was spent fighting CSS for IE6 #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 twodayslate @rachelconn i like that :P #DCTH devigner -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 jasonatennui @twodayslate UI. Front-end stuff generally shapes how the user interacts with the page, and back-end is how the page handles data. #DCTH -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 sunwukung @twodayslate when you say frontend, do you mean the visuals, the layout, the site structure? That's design, maybe a bit of IA #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 svgrob @thedayafter ya, newspapers are a practical commodity for most ppl, if there is a faster better option... they will be gone. #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009

madysondesigns @DCTH A great example is CDs- I know people who STILL buy CDs for the booklet- I definitely miss it buying on iTunes too. #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 pulptone Design will not save the smaller papers at all. Public is oblivious to it sadly. They want the content. Content is tanking. #dcth -6:28 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 robertbanh RT @sunwukung Flash is the flash killer - i don't want to sit watching the internet load so true. #dcth -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009

rachelconn @twodayslate that would be a web designer who can code, a devigner if you will..great place to be these days! #dcth -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009

Guero_sansBeck this approach takes USA Today's original approach of attractive readability through more images- shorter articles to a whole new level #dcth -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 lirmac @formula623 Right with you. I print letterpress as a hobby, just for the craft. Makes a change from staring at the screen! #DCTH -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 jasonatennui @DCTH Aside from books, I haven't really dealt with print materials at all. I function almost entirely in the digital realm. #DCTH -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 chaseswindler I step away for two seconds and I've already gotten completely lost in the convo. #dcth -6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 nologydesign @g33kguy Good stuff. What do you develop with? #dcth - 6:27 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 pulptone There will always be a need for news. It's just gone digital. Design is still there. We need to adapt. #dcth -6:26 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 divinefusion @svgrob @DCTH ditto :) print will not go away, it'll just get better, cost less and be more enviro friendly #dcth -6:26 PM Apr 23rd, 2009

Guero_sansBeck design can papers in poorer areas, like some mentioned. But it's still a delaying tactic somewhere as tech savvy and ADD as the US #dcth -6:25 PM Apr 23rd, 2009 g33kguy @nologydesign we also produce prototypes that have to run independent of servers, so programming/dev for client side is important. #dcth -6:25 PM Apr 23rd, 2009

sunwukung @sbolen In short, development generally means a healthy dose of dollar signs and all the brackets you can lay your hands on #dcth -6:25 PM Apr 23rd, 2009
